Profile

Why use Nicholson Consultancy?

One of our strengths is our ability to develop and deliver a training programme which has been tailored to your organisation's needs. First, we talk to you to establish what are your plans and aims, visions and values for the organisation or department; we then observe your processes and agree with you the results you will achieve and the type of training which will best suit you and your workforce. We offer on- or off-site delivery; workshops; training in groups; 1 to 1 coaching - whatever fits best with your needs. All training is delivered to you by our experienced business professionals with a practical, real world, "no jargon" approach.

As a management consultancy, we have helped implement many successful programmes of change to a wide range of organisations and understand the implications and consequences of such programmes. We have a great deal of experience in integrating new processes and motivating staff through positive and practical training.
